Official Weekly Bulletin of the Rotary Club of Lafayette

21 Aug 2008 VOLUME 63 ISSUE 08

John Sherry opened the meeting. Bill Ames offered the thought for the day.

Guests: Margot Camp, who has graciously offered to assist with the golf tournament.

Anna Connolly, Sandi Mitchell, and John Sherry presented Mo Levich his Red Badge, Rotary shirt and jacket.

John Sherry recognized Jack Clarkson, Bill Ames, Mike Henn, Ron Wake, Tom Henry and himself for perfect attendance last year. Mike Heller noted that Peggy Harbarth has had perfect attendance for the past 10 years.

The Foundation Seminar is in Fairfield on Saturday the 23 of August. Ron Wake and Tom Henry plan to accompany John Sherry to the meeting.

Bob Shusta reminded us of two potluck dinners on Sept 12 and 13 for members of the Rotary Club of Ekaterinburg, Russia during their visit. He is looking for a host for one Russian woman. Contact Bob if you can help with the hosting.

Geoff Zimmerman announced that the Art and Wine Festival is Sept 20 and 21. Instead of having a food booth, this year we will have two new roles. We will be roving ambassadors, helping out wherever needed, and we will share a booth with the Lamorinda Sunrise Club to promote Rotary. One of our duties will be to distribute wheelchairs to those in need and to ask for donations for the Wheelchair Foundation.

The Golf & Wine Classic raffle tickets have been distributed; please give stubs and proceeds to John Sherry. The committee is looking for staff and support for the fundraiser. In particular, they are looking for one person to volunteer in the morning to catalog the incoming wine with value and description using the internet.

Steve Snyder was recognized for selling $110.00 worth of raffle tickets at last week's Rock the Plaza. He collected happy dollars and fines from Bob Shusta, Troy Winkles, and Jay Lifson.

SPEAKER: Patrick Schwerdtfeger, founder of Tactical Execution; a company that leverages marketing strategies through use of the internet. He is an award-winning speaker and was an instructor at the 2007 Internet Marketing Conference in Sweden.

Patrick is also the author of Make Yourself Useful; Marketing in the 21st Century, and the organizer of the Entrepreneur and Small Business Academy.

Patrick's presentation centered around media platforms available on the Internet to reach markets that benefit your business or program and sell your products or expertise. The value of this media platform information is to help drive people to our Website. Clubs like Rotary sometimes have a challenge in dispersing information on the value of Rotary to the younger generation. Driving the internet generation to our Website can educate, provide credibility and offer the opportunity to evaluate the information.

There is a component-based approach to internet marketing called tactical execution that helps select the best ways to get people to your website, and impress them when they get there. This is done through blogging websites such as twitter and utterz, that can integrate with our websites to drive traffic and potentially increase knowledge and interest of younger members.
